

STEPHEN UNGER - BIO

Stephen has spent most of his life in the outdoors so it was only natural that he should sketch and paint in the field. He does not think of himself as a Landscape artist even though most of his paintings are Landscapes in Plein Air. Most of his work is from the four states that make up the Four Corners and the mountains of West Texas. He mostly works in Acrylics and Oils but sometimes he will choose to work in other mediums that seems to work better for the location.

He received a BFA from the University of Texas at Austin, College of Fine Arts in Studio Art. He is a member of Plein Air Painters of the Four Corners, Plein Air Painters of New Mexico and is represented by The Purple Sage Gallery in Old Town Albuquerque, New Mexico; The Gallery at Fort Davis Drug Store, Fort Davis, Texas; and Holland Hotel, Alpine, Texas. He has received awards in many regional and national competitions with featured shows in many states.
